

The Edit: A round-up of favourite furniture and objects

InteriorsAu editor Cassie Hansen gathers together her favourite design items that have crossed her desk in September 2025.

1/5

Artwork by Bobby Bowers Image: MARS Gallery

by Cassie
Hansen
24 Sep 2025

Artwork by Bobby Bowers

MARS Gallery's latest group exhibition caught my eye this week, particularly the latest works from Bobby Bowers. The exhibition, titled The Room: Our Landscape Interior, investigates the shared connection to and from the interior landscape and our place within them. The exhibition features fourteen artists, and amongst them, Bowers' painting delighted me. His paintings present a documentary-style view of his immediate surroundings, capturing the mess and moments of everyday life – the dirty knife left on the edge of the sink (the universal symbol for “I can make another sandwich with this later”), dishwashing liquid bottles on window sills, and kitchen benches captured mid French-toast-making. I'm late to the party, but I'm a big fan of Bobby Bowers. The show is on until 27 September.

Thalamos collection by Christopher Boots

Indigenous arts and cultural centre on
North Stradbroke
Island opens

Architecture, Au®

ArchitectureAu.com/Directory

Latest on site

Faking it: is all architecture
'inauthentic'?

Mastering the art of high-low design

Modular building wins $10K prize for design innovation

Renowned lighting designer Christopher Boots has launched his first object collection titled Thalamos. Consisting of five hand-cast brass pieces – a vase, a platter, a trinket box, an incense holder and an ashtray – the collection is inspired by the Greek word ‘thalamus,’ meaning “inner chamber” and is intended to nurture daily rituals and elevates one’s own sanctuary – something we’re all trying hard at these days. “Each piece is meticulously crafted to elevate moments of quiet contemplation,” Boots says.

Kyoto Wood range by Jason Gibney Design Studio

Kyoto Wood range by Jason Gibney Design Studio Image: Supplied

Inspired by Japanese bathing traditions, each piece in the Kyoto Wood collection is crafted from aromatic timbers like Hinoki and Western Red Cedar, known for their calming natural oils. As steam rises, the wood releases a soothing scent, promoting tranquility and connection to nature. Designed to encourage mindfulness, the collection turns everyday bathing into a meditative experience and elevates your daily routine.

Dwell by Ross Gardam

Dwell furniture collection by Ross Gardam Image: Supplied.

Melbourne designer Ross Gardam had released his new modular lounge collection called Dwell. The collection is built on a sculptural rail system, allowing for flexibility and comfort. Each piece features clean lines and tailored upholstery and purposefully encourages connection and collaboration, as well as quiet focus – making it ideal for residential and commercial or public settings.

Maker & Son and Studio ALM collaboration

DESIGN AWARDS

Most read

Whale-inspired viewing platform opens on Victoria's Great Ocean Road

Centres of attention: Five houses with courtyards that anchor daily life

Indigenous arts and cultural centre on North Stradbroke Island opens

Architecture, Au®

ArchitectureAu.com/Directory

Latest on site

Faking it: is all architecture 'inauthentic'?

Mastering the art of high-low design

Modular building wins $10K prize for design innovation

Enjoy Architecture Australia, Houses, Houses Kitchens+Bathrooms and Landscape Architecture Australia anytime, anywhere.

Subscribe today

Maker&Son and Studio ALM collaboration armchair, shown in "Gate" print. Image: Supplied.

Furniture brand Maker&Son and Sydney design gallery Studio ALM unite for the first time in a bold collaboration that reimagines the iconic Maker&Son armchair. The new interchangeable Merino wool and hand-dyed cotton covers celebrate self expression, and Studio ALM drew inspiration from Jenny Kee, Linda Jackson and the vibrant graphics of Sonia Delaunay, channelling this spirit into striking textiles created with Swiss brand ZigZag Zurich. My favourite is the "Gate" bold grid pattern by Nathalie Du Pasquier and George Sowden, founders of the Memphis movement.

Related topics

INTERIORS THE EDIT

More product news (View All)

The Edit: A round-up of favourite furniture and objects

InteriorsAu editor Cassie Hansen gathers together her favourite design items that have crossed her desk in August 2025.

The Edit: A round-up of favourite furniture and objects

InteriorsAu editor Cassie Hansen gathers together her favourite design items that have crossed her desk in July 2025.

Vicostone

Genesis Signature Fairview

Fade Acoustic Ceiling Ecco Solutions

Stay up-to-date on all the Australian architecture and design news.
Subscribe now.

Architecture Media acknowledges the Traditional Custodians of the land and waters of Australia.

About us
Advertise
Contact us
Privacy
Terms of use
Contributors

Store
Websites
ArchitectureAu
Landscape Australia

Magazines
Architecture Australia
Houses
Houses Kitchens + Bathrooms
Landscape Architecture Australia
ArchitectureAu Products
Artichoke

Events
Design Speaks series
The Architecture Symposiums
Houses Awards
Australian Interior Design Awards
AA Prize for Unbuilt Work
ArchitectureAu Award for Social Impact
Eat Drink Design Awards

